PARVOVIRUS (PARVO) EDUCATION & ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Canine Parvovirus (Parvo) is a highly contagious and potentially fatal viral disease that primarily affects puppies and unvaccinated dogs. The virus attacks the intestinal tract and immune system and can survive in the environment for extended periods.

Symptoms may include severe lethargy, loss of appetite, vomiting, severe diarrhea (often bloody), dehydration, fever, abdominal pain, and rapid weight loss. Immediate veterinary attention is required if these symptoms occur.

To help prevent Parvo, the Buyer agrees to continue all vaccinations as directed by their veterinarian, avoid dog parks, pet stores, grooming facilities, and contact with unknown dogs until the puppy has completed its vaccination series, maintain a clean environment, and seek immediate veterinary care if symptoms develop.

The Seller cannot guarantee against future exposure to or contraction of Parvovirus after the puppy leaves the Seller's possession because exposure can occur from contaminated environments outside the Seller's control.

PARVO ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

By signing below, both parties acknowledge that the Buyer has received information regarding Parvovirus, understands the symptoms, risks, and prevention requirements, and has had the opportunity to ask questions.
